Yesterday morning Paul said to himself. "I've got to write that economics paper today. If I don't do anything else, I've got to write that paper."

"I haven't written my family since Thanksgiving," he said to himself. "I'll write them a letter first."

Paul wrote his family a long letter. "My typewriter needs a new ribbon. I've got to change this ribbon before I write my "economics paper."

The ink from the typewriter ribbon got his hands very dirty, so he washed them and washed them. While he was washing his hands, he noticed that his fingernails were much too long. He cut them very carefully and then went back to his desk. He put a sheet of paper into his typewriter, looked out of the window, and looked at his watch. It was noon.

Mr Adamson enjoys playing the violin in his leisure time. He is often carried away by his music. But it is a terrible time for his neighbours when Mr Adamson plays as he does so badly.

One day Mr Adamson sat by a window and began to play the violin as usual. Mr Adamson seems to be making noises instead of music. However, Mr Adamson was absorbed. Just then, some stones were thrown out of the window under which Mr Adamson was sitting, but he did not pay attention to it. The "music" continued. After a little while, an empty bottle and a worn-out shoe were thrown out of the window too. Mr Adamson knew that this was not the place for him. The neighbours did not like his "music". Mr Adamson was very sad. He was badly hurt. "Perhaps no living people can understand my music. I should go to a place where people may appreciate my works." So he decided to go to a graveyard.

He came to a graveyard where there was no other sound except the church toll. The yard was a Heaven where dead people rest. Mr Adamson sat at a grave and thought a lot, "I must do my best to show that my music is outstanding." He was inspired and began to play his violin. Suddenly a barefoot stretched out from the grave and gave Mr Adamson a kick which sent him flying. His treasured violin also dropped from his hand. 一、请朗读以下短文中的斜体字部分的内容 (20 分)

Sam waited patiently in the long line at the grocery store. He had come to pick up a few items for his mother. He often did chores for his parents after school. He enjoyed helping out at home. As he waited, he daydreamed about the new camera he wanted to buy. He wanted to buy it soon because his family was going on a vacation, and he wanted to take pictures of their trip. There was only one problem. He needed seven more dollars to buy the camera. His lawn-mowing job at the Smith's should provide the money shortly.

Suddenly Sam was roughly shoved aside. He recognized Mrs Sanders, an unkind and unfriendly person who lived on his block. She had shoved in front of him without even smiling. Just as Mrs Sanders received her change and her purchases, a ten-dollar bill flew out of her hand and fell at Sam's feet. Mrs Sanders, however, was too busy criticizing the cashier for his slowness to notice. As Sam bent to pick up the money, he thought quickly. The money did belong to Mrs Sanders, but she deserved to lose it after the way she had behaved, and, with it, he could buy the camera.

一、请朗读以下短文中的斜体字部分的内容 (20 分)

Mrs Moore had worked hard all day at the office, and she was looking forward to a relaxing evening at home.

Just as she walked in the door, the telephone began to ring. She dashed to answer the phone and found that the caller was a man trying to sell her some light bulbs. She refused and hung up the phone.

She smelled dinner cooking and went in to see how her children were getting along with the meal. Everything was ready except setting the table, so Mrs Moore went upstairs to change clothes.

Just as she reached the head of the stairs, the telephone rang again. When Mrs Moore answered it, she found out that her husband wouldn't be home for dinner.

After she changed clothes, she went back downstairs to eat. During dinner, the phone rang twice. Her sister called to ask about the family, and a group wanted her to do some volunteer work. She and the children finished dinner and began cleaning up the kitchen. The phone rang again. The neighbours wanted to borrow the garden hose.

After the kitchen was cleaned, Mrs Moore sat down with a sigh to read while the children did their homework. The phone rang again.

Without even answering it, Mrs Moore called to her children, "Get ready, we're all going to a movie."

"Great! But why?"

"It seems that's the only way we can get away from this telephone."
